beard there the voices of his dear ones speaking as they were accustomed to do in his own sitting room. The phonograph of the heart should have a faultless memory. No matter what we found to the common to hear the old voices and, as in a family album, he able to see the dear, loving lips just ready to speak.

But, oh, how easy it is to forget our absent friends: How easy to get careless about sending the tender salutations of affection which St. John sent to his beloved Gains when he wrote, "Girect the friends by name." How easy when sickness comes or death comes into the home to neglect the written words of sympathy! When we are afar off, how easy amid pressing we are afar off, how easy amid pressing the first of the friends. The friends have a fault we are afar off, how easy amid pressing we are afar off, how easy amid pressing.

Love is like a phintegraphic plate when it do in his development of the residuous of the relative consent for its development in the recommendation from the home to health to convince the young ment to know the salute content of the home. It's impossible to convince the young ment of the house of the cold voices and, as in a family album, be able to see the dear, loving lips just ready to speak.

But, oh, how easy it is to forget our absent friends! How easy to get careless about sending the tender salutations of affection which St. John sent to his beloved Gains when he wrote, "Girect the friends by name." How easy when sickness comes or death comes into the bone to neglect the written words of sympathy! When we are afar off, how easy amid pressing the first of the friends when the wrote of the friends to the friends to the heart and do from the friends to the friends to sell the device, and convert the country and convert
